

Instagram photos reveal predictive markers of depression

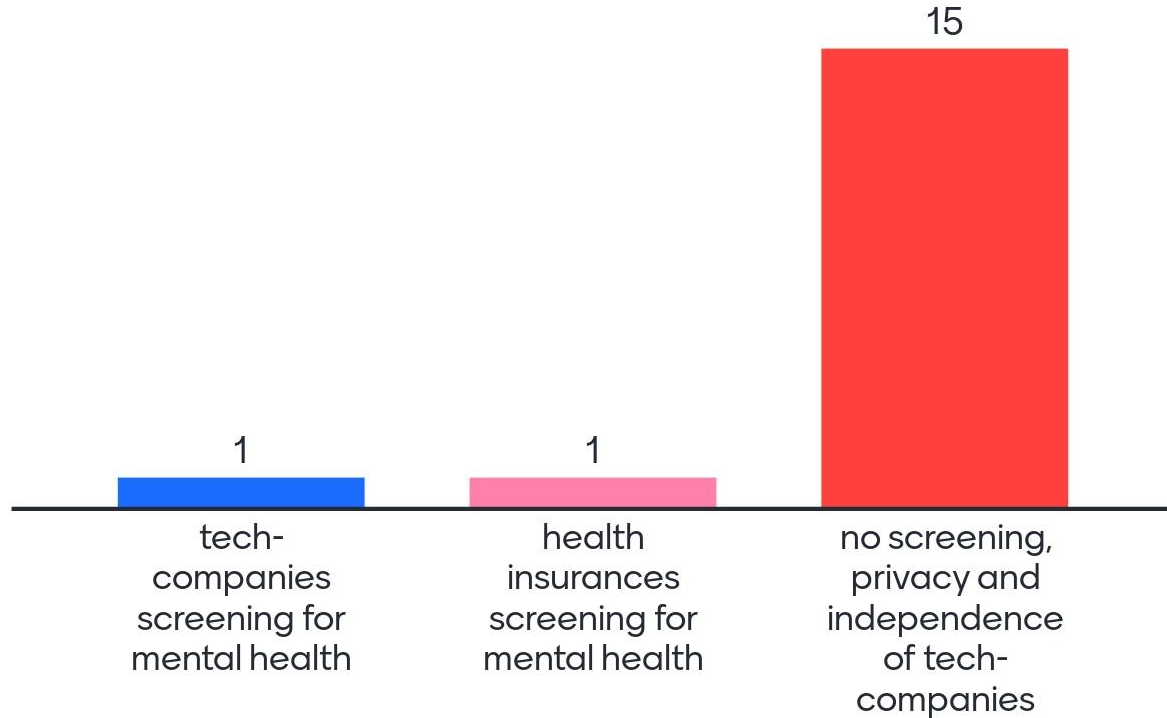

(Andrew G. Reece and Christopher M. Danforth, 2017)

DH-500 - paper presentation 07/05/2021
Discussants: Julian Fritsch, Anna Sophia Bauer

your opinion please!

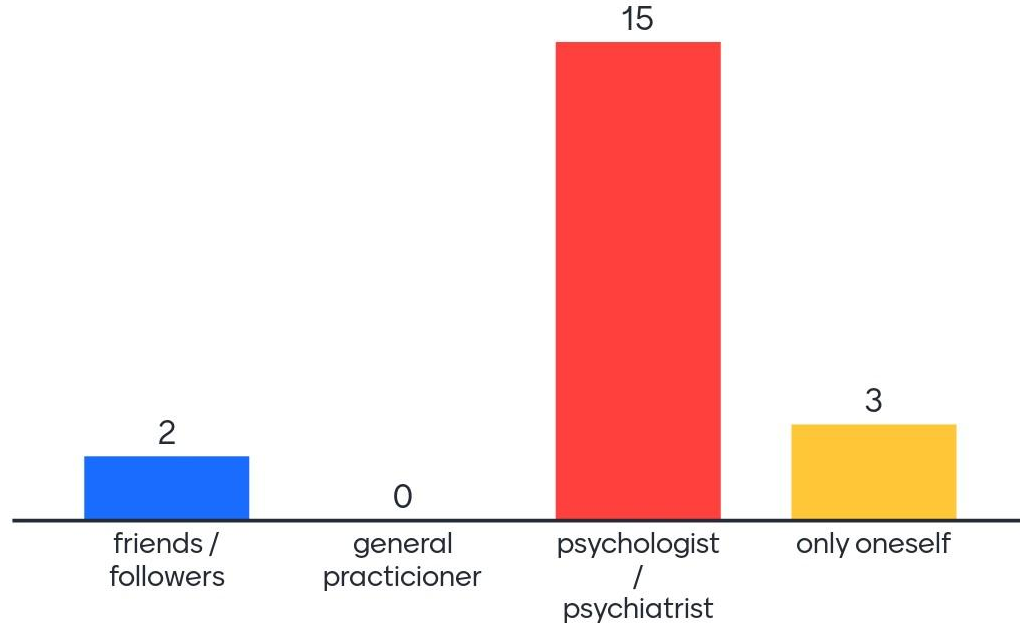

SCREENING: What's more expensive for society / healthcare system? False positives or false negatives?

What screening mode is useful for a society?

Who can label people for depression screening?

Who can label people for depression screening?

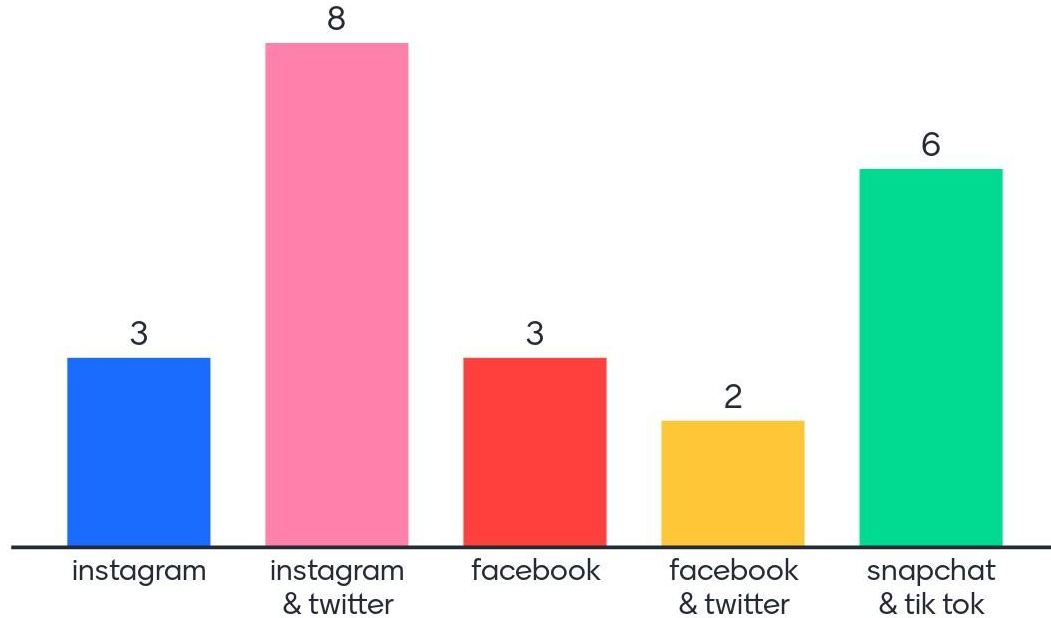

Which of the following is a reliable depression feature?

Which of the following is a reliable depression feature?

What kind of social media data is sufficient for depression screening?

What kind of social media data is sufficient for depression screening?

Should social media companies do screening of mental disorders in general or be restricted?

Should social media companies do screening of mental disorders in general or be restricted?

If instagram depression screening is a future business, how should this work?

If Instagram depression screening is a future business, how should this work?

What screening mode is useful for a society?

What screening mode is useful for a society?

Would you allow Instagram
to use your data

Would you allow Instagram to use your data

Correlation or Causality?

Demographic correlation?

Current perspectives on depression treatment indicate that people who are

- well-informed and psychologically minded
- experience typical symptoms of depression and little stigma
- trust effectiveness of treatment
- adequate social support
- high self-efficacy

seek out mental health services

→ intersection with typical Instagram user demographics caution in making broad inferences, based on our findings.

References

Reece, A. G., & Danforth, C. M. (2017). Instagram photos reveal predictive markers of depression. EPJ Data Science, 6(1), 15. DOI: 10.1140/epjds/s13688-017-0110-z

Thank you!